SIX DAYS' PROGRAMME FOR THE GREAT CARNIVAL CELEBRATION

The Formal Opening Will Take Place from the Grand Stand on Broad Street at 11 o'clock To-morrow Morning—All Bells in the City Will Be Rung and Hundreds of Whistles Will Be Blown—There Are Many Attractions for Each Day.

The Street Fair will open at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning with one of the most novel features of the week. On a special stand erected for the purpose, in the presence of the Carnival Association, the Governor, Board of Aldermen, the City Council, members of the Chamber of Commerce and the vast assemblage of visitors and citizens, the daughter of the United Association of Electricians will, after an oration by Mr. Joseph Bryan, pluck a flower from a large bouquet, which will send a spark of electricity throughout the city, simultaneously ringing every bell and blowing every whistle, which will be immediately followed by the combined music of fifteen bands.

1:30 P. M.—THE COHEN COMPANY will give for the best page of penmanship by a child ten years of age, or under, $5 in gold.
The presentation will be made at the company's booth, in front of the store, No. 11 to 17 East Broad Street.

His Majesty's equipage will be escorted to the same by the Knights of the Golden Horseshoe, and they will preside, 200 strouk, at the ceremony. The grand coronation ceremony will take place amid coronation music and electric and calcium effects. The King will be crowned by the High Cardinal, in robes of crimson and ermine. After the coronation the Lord Mayor, accompanied by his pages, will present on a golden silver, the keys of the city. At the command of His Majesty, the royal scribe will then thank the Mayor, officials of the city and Carnival, and read the edict, proclaiming one week of glory and merry-making, and throwing the city open to visitors from the four quarters of the world. This impressive ceremony will be followed by a season of Olympian games given for Mr. Majesty and Court.

FREE STREET ENTERTAINMENT.
The following free shows will be given daily during the Fair at 12, 2 and 6 o'clock.

Gay Bon Air.

The closing exercises of Miss Shafter's Cottillon Class was held at Le Noel Hotel on Friday evening. The spacious parlors, dining-room and halls were all thrown into one by the large communicating double doors, and the young people enjoyed to their hearts' delight an evening of real pleasure.

The german was led by Mr. T. V. Moore. Among the visitors and members of the class were the following: Miss Stevenson, of the Warm Springs, Va.; Miss Colston, of Wilmington, N. C.; Miss Scott, of Galveston, Tex.; Misses Forbes, Noel, Adamson, Sutton, Bates, Talcott, and Shafter, and Messrs. T. V. and Alfred Moore, Paul and Louis Shafter, Stuart Leake, Frank and Howard Sutton, Talcott, Adamson, Cooke, Forbes and Ferguson.

A PRETTY FEMALE DRUGGIST HERE

Miss Wanous Puts up Prescriptions and Goes Into Society.

WAS THE SECOND IN AMERICA.

A Most Attractive Young Woman Who Does a Large Business and Commands Great Respect by Reason of Her Independence.

Early in the week a passer-by happened to glance into the convention hall at the Jefferson, where the American Pharmaceutical Association was holding its meeting, and saw seated with the members one woman, who appeared so interested in the proceedings and seemed so wide-awake and alive to the things going on around her that she at once attracted the attention of the onlooker, who felt certain that she must possess a history of more than passing interest. The supposition was proved to be correct, for the attractive young woman was Miss Wanous, the proprietor of a prosperous drug store, of Minneapolis, Minn.

Miss Wanous, although a very young woman, not yet thirty years of age, has had a career that is rather remarkable and eminently successful. She was born in America of Bohemian parents, and speaks her parents' native language fluently. To this fact is probably due the life work she has taken up, for early she was called into a drug store to act as interpreter to the large number of Bohemian customers.

Here the colored bottles and vials of different shapes began to attract the little maid, and the desire came to know what were their contents and how they were made.

When Miss Wanous told her people of her intention to study pharmacy, she met with disapproval, expostulations and objections enough to discourage a less brave young woman than she. Twelve years ago the professions were not quite so open to women as they are to-day, and few were able to surmount the barriers placed in their way by those who considered such aspirations outside woman's sphere. But in this instance courage and determination won, and Miss Wanous was graduated from the Minneapolis College in 1882, the second young woman to receive a diploma in that profession in America. For three years she acted as drug clerk in one of the large stores of her city, and in 1886, with an unlimited supply of courage and self-confidence, a goodly amount of absorbent cotton and $200 saved from her earnings, Miss Wanous opened store on her own account, and one claimed by physicians of her city to be a model drug store.

MADE A BIG SUCCESS.
Miss Wanous carried on her business in a physician's building, and enjoys the implicit confidence of the members of the medical profession of her city. She has a large prescription practice, and devotes a great deal of her time to toilet articles of her own manufacture. No cigars are sold in her store, no soda-water and no patent medicines. Miss Wanous now has her sister with her as assistant. So successful and progressive has her undertakings been that Miss Wanous has been able to give her two brothers a university education, and they are both practicing physicians in Minneapolis.

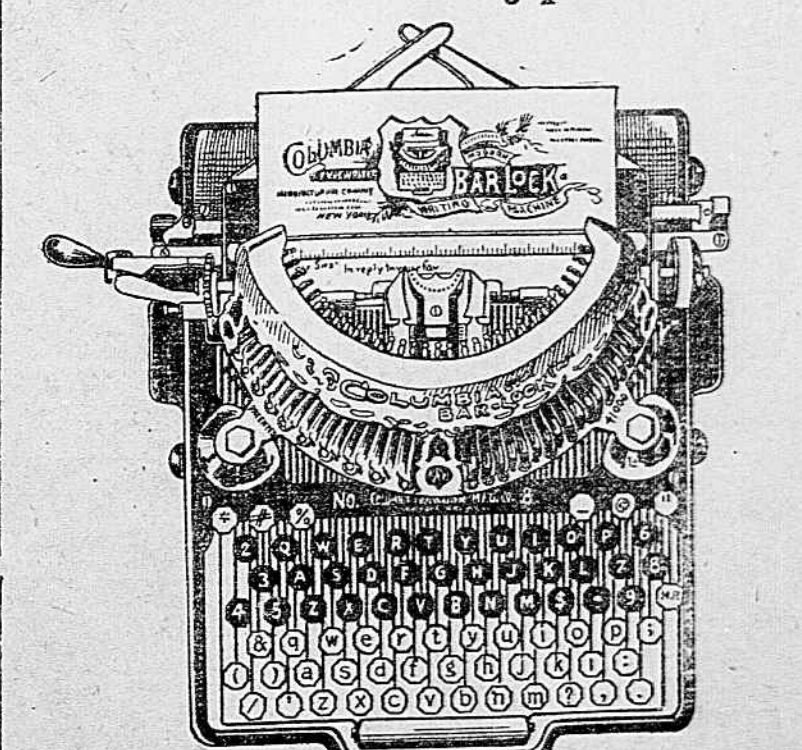

Five years ago Miss Wanous became a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association, and at the convention at Baltimore in 1888 she had the honor of being elected third vice-president. Miss Wanous has an exceedingly charming personality, that makes friends for her wherever she goes. She is a tall, beautiful and well-groomed young woman, with a fresh, blooming complexion, and waving hair, the color of her light brown eyes.

In spite of her close attention to her profession, Miss Wanous by no means gives up all social pleasures, but moves in the exclusive social circles of her city.

Always A La Mode.
"Some people just naturally can't help being stylish."
"That's so; there's Bolinda; if she got bitten by a dog it would be sure to be a dachshund."

For educational purposes an Illinois man has designed a figure in the shape of a cube, comprising corner blocks with sockets to support tubular pieces, which are joined to form the cube, books being placed in position to carry cords which indicate the diagonal and other lines of the cube.
